

Case 1: More than a good story.

Q As top of the managers of their company, what types of issues might Bert & John have to ~~face~~ deal with? Be specific as possible, which management functions might be most important to them? why?

→ As Managers Bert & John ^{have} ~~has~~ to face many challenges. The issues they ^{may} ~~face~~ are closely related to these challenges. Managers challenges are

~~The issues Bert & John ^{have-might} ~~face~~ ~~are~~ are~~ Innovation, might

The issues Bert & John might have to ~~face~~ deal with are stated as -

1. Innovation! They might need to innovate better stuff to maintain their massive growth while ensuring new products still align with the simple, humorous "Take & Rocket" brand identity.

2. Customers: They will have to give consistently high-quality service. ~~As~~ As their brand promise "Life is good", poor customer service would immediately break trust.

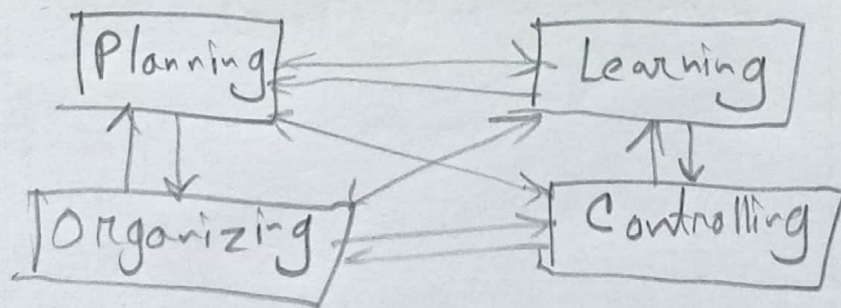

3. Ethics: With the creation & funding of the Life is good kids Foundation & their partnership with Project Joy, Bart & John ~~has to~~ might face ethical challenge for managing. They ~~do~~ must ensure that the funds raised through festival & specific product sales are properly allocated.

4. E-business: To handle product line of 900+ items & rapid growth, they must ~~not~~ utilize e-commerce. They might have to transition to into an E-business enhanced organization.

5. Globalization: As a $100 million company, they might face political & cultural challenges in global market.

6. Knowledge Management: They started hiring friends, but a $100 million company requires a large, diverse workforce. So, they will need knowledge full human resource for their company.

There are 4 functions of Management. Known as POLC.

From these functions "Planning" & "Organizing" will be most important them. As -

- Planning: This is where we define goals, establish strategies to achieve goals. They must define the long-term strategy required to sustain their 30% to 40% annual growth.

They have to plan how to enter new markets, when to introduce new product lines (expanding beyond 900 items) & how to strategically integrate their goals (Project Joy) with their revenue.

- Organizing :- This is where we arrange work to accomplish organizational goals. Moving from a card table in Boston to a $100 million corporate entity requires massive organizational structuring. If they must decide to ~~div~~ divide departments, establish hierarchical reporting & allocate resource efficiently.

11) Using descriptions from case 1, describe managerial style. Would this affect ~~how~~ ^{other} managers approach work for the organization? why or why not?

→ If we look at Mintzberg's Management roles. We can say that Bert & John's managerial style is highly informal, ~~culturally~~ culturally driven, & deeply rooted in the 'Interpersonal' & 'Decisional' categories, Stated Below -

- Interpersonal Category:-

★ Leader. - This is the most dominant aspect of their style. They manage by fostering a specific, optimistic culture rather than relying on strict authorization control.

★ Figurehead - Bert & John act as symbolic leaders of the brand. They personally embody the "simplicity, humor & humi~~lity~~lity" that Jake the cartoon guy represents. Also their involvement in the Life in good kids Foundation & Project Joy serves as their symbolic "Life is good", "Do what you like", "Life is great" motto.

- Decisional Category

★ Entrepreneur - Their style falls in this ~~role~~ role as well. From selling shirts out of a beat-up van to recognizing the ~~exp~~ potential of the Jake drawing at the Cambridge street fair, they constantly identifying new ideas. They manage an aggressively growing company (30-40% ~~annually~~ annually) with product line that has expanded to over 900 items.

Organization Type

- They fall into a "Privately held Organization". Because

★ The company was founded by two brothers & still controlled by them. There is no public ~~shareholder~~ shareholders (as not mention any) ..

★ Their managerial style is as a private organization have. They ~~also~~ do have to answer to external company or shareholder. * They prioritize "care free" & "optimistic" corporate culture over rigid corporate efficiency. They ~~also~~ ~~for~~ focus ~~too~~ * They also focus toward non-profit partnerships. ~~with~~

Their approach would not work for all organization. Defended Below.

* Public Sector Org. & Crown Corp.

- These are funded by taxpayer & are built on strict accountability, transparency & standard procedure where "carefree", "simplicity" & ~~hiring~~ attitude & hiring friends would likely violate standards

- Also these sectors rely on "Informational" & "Decisional - Resource allocator" roles to justify dollar ~~see~~ spent justification. "Do what you like" motto won't work here.

* Publicly held Organization

- These companies require "Spokesperson & Monitor" roles to ensure earnings are justified. "Life is good" motto might seem very optimistic. & culturally driven approach may discourage new investors as a lack of discipline.

* Subsidiaries of Foreign Organizations

- Culturally driven organization may not be suitable for foreign society. People may not accept these type of products as their own.
